Dorothy Dix Talks

THE POOR OLD FATHER

By DOROTHY DIX, the World's Highest Paid Woman Writer

Perhaps you read it in the paper the other day. The story of a feeble and decrepit old man who asked the court to force his children to support him.

"If I could work and feed, and clothe five children, and raise them to manhood and womanhood, I think that the five of them, among them, should take care of me now that I am too old to work any more," he said pathetically.

Let us hope for the honor of humanity that such cases as this are rare, and that not many men are so unfortunate as to raise a large family without hearing someone he is an honored and welcome guest, or having some strong arm on which to lean as he totters down the western slope.

No other crime is so black as that of filial ingratitude. God, Himself, has pronounced a curse upon it, and woe betide the man or woman who returns the love and tenderness, and self-sacrifice that hedged in his or her childhood with the nigard crust, and the grudgingly given shelter, when the hands that have toiled for him or her are weak with age, and the shoulders that have toiled so long can work no more. The old eyes have grown too dim, the old feet too slow, and the old clerk or the old artisan must give up his job.

Tragic and pitiful is the old man's lot if the children for whom he sacrificed so much and worked so long do not struggle with each other for the privilege of making his last days happy and comfortable, and if their warmest welcome and their softest chair, and the honored place at their fireside is not for him.

For the poor man must almost inevitably be dependent on his children in his old age. He cannot accumulate a competency under ordinary conditions because all that he makes is absorbed in the support of his family. He can only point to his children as the investment in which he has put his life work, and if they are ungrateful, he has, indeed, labored in vain, and is bankrupt in purse and heart.

Thieves—oh worse than thieves—are the men and women who cheat their fathers of the love, and honor, and reverence that are their due, and that the great All Father set himself as the just reward of fatherhood.

A Studio Club

We might well pattern some of our furnishings after a certain delightful studio club. The library, for instance, has gray walls with a border of scarlet and blue and yellow. The tables, too, are gray, outlined with a scarlet design, and there are gray chairs with seats of blue and scarlet webbing. The office of the club has walls of turquoise blue, the carpet is striped in sapphire and red, the curtains are of sapphire lined with pale green yellow silks and bound with scarlet cord, and there is a scarlet table with a gay border of fruits and flowers.

The benches are scarlet, orange and pale green yellow, with saten cushions of red, violet and sapphire bound with scarlet and turquoise tape. The ceiling is pale yellow.

Colorful indeed are these artistic rooms, but it is left to the writing room to unite the primary colors, where the walls are orange with a small design in blue and scarlet for a border. The carpet is sapphire, the benches orange with cushions of scarlet saten, the desk fittings scarlet and blue. The chairs are orange with blue webbing seats.

Needless to say, these rooms were done by artists, so when you get out your paint brush be sure that yours is the artistic eye or do not be too prodigal of your colors.

But, artist or not, if you do not attempt too much, if you are careful and do your work with some sense of harmony and beauty and, above all, with care, you cannot fail to make attractive things for your home with the aid of the paint brush.

Did You Know?

That if you cannot cook chicken within an hour of the time the chicken is killed then you should wait for forty-eight or seventy-two hours? The idea is that very soon after killing the muscles of the bird become stiffened and this does not subside until two or three days have passed. If you cook the chicken within that time it will be tough.

That tough meat and inexpensive meat are just as full of nourishment as tender meat? In fact, some of the tenderest cuts, such as the tenderloin of beef, do not come up to some of the tougher portions.

That if you want to make sure of getting absolutely fresh poultry and not the cold storage sort, you should find out the location of the nearest kosher or Jewish market, where nothing but fresh killed meat is sold? You may be sure of getting the right sort of chickens there and you can take it home to let it ripen a day or so before cooking.

That the best way to cook chickens is without stuffing? The stuffing takes from the flavor of the chicken and also makes it necessary to cook it longer to make it thoroughly done. An authority on cooking says that we should place the stuffing in the pan beside the chicken rather than in it.

That the idea of rubbing roasts with flour and salt before roasting is to hasten the process of browning on the surface, which keeps the juices of the meat within and thereby adds to the flavor of the roast? That it is better economy to buy fat meat than lean? That if you select meat that contains no fat you will have to add fat if you wish to cook it properly?

Fashion Chat

Printed chiffons are combined with heavier silk in solid colors for some of the new negligee models.

The shield front coat is becoming more and more prominent.

Virtually every collection of stunning fall blouses contains a few of wool, varied by chenille, with an occasional model with angers.

"Beaver," which is slightly darker than bismarck in color, is largely displacing the lighter shade for blouse use.

In the world of "undies" shadow embroidery in color is used on georgette ground, for trimming.

A negligee with a fastidious clientele is one which uses a three tone combination. It borrows the Japanese fashion of showing the under colors at the outer edges of the garment.

JOHNSON AND BORAH OBJECT

Senators Point Out Why They Cannot Agree With the President.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Senators Johnson, California, and Borah, Idaho, Republicans, declared in a statement tonight that upon the facts developed at the White House conference today as stated by them, the position they had maintained "in respect to this covenant of the league of nations is justified and confirmed."

"The league of nations as construed by the president," they said, "leaves it clear and unmistakable that when we enter it we are under a compelling moral obligation, to say nothing of the legal obligation which other supporters contend we are under, to take part in the disturbances, the conflicts, settlements, and the wars of Europe and Asia, if any should arise, and it is equally true that under his construction, Europe would necessarily be under the same compelling force to take part in the settlement of American affairs."

The senators said that in their opinion "the significant facts developed by the interview with the president" were:

"There yet remain treaties of peace to be made with Austria, Hungary, Bulgaria and the Ottoman empire. These treaties deal with subjects as important, territory as extensive, and matters as intimately affecting the United States as the treaty with Germany. The obligations of the United States—therefore, what our country assumes in the future—cannot be determined until these treaties are completed and presented to the United States senate."

"The president regards the obligations which will be assumed under the league of nations, and particularly under articles X and XI as moral obligations. These, however, are of 'compelling' force, and would require action upon our part. For instance, the president concedes that in an undoubted case of aggression from the Balkans upon the newly acquired territory of Italy it would be our duty to come to the assistance of Italy and prevent such aggression. The president's construction of article X is at variance with the construction of the Democratic attorneys of the senate."

"A moral obligation, the president insists, rests upon us to carry out the terms of the various treaties of peace. This moral obligation, the president states, requires us under the German treaty for fifteen years to maintain American troops in Europe."

"The president did not know, nor had he heard of the secret treaties for territorial acquisition and partitioning various territories until he reached Paris. (Here the senators outlined the treaties referred to.)"

"The president opposed the Shantung decision. It was officially conveyed to him that the Japanese would not sign unless the Shantung rights were given to Japan. The United States experts advised the president that Japan's verbal promise to return the sovereignty of the territory in Shantung, while retaining the economic concessions, was a return of the shell of the nut by Japan while she retained the kernel. The Chinese insisted the retention of the sovereignty, but the president says he disagrees with this view."

"England, France and Italy adhered at the peace conference to their secret treaties disposing of peoples and territories in the Shantung case; therefore, the president was the only disinterested judge. The decision, however, was made unanimously."

"The United States asked China to enter the war."

"The American commission at Paris urged that a definite sum of reparations be fixed in the treaty. Why this view did not prevail, the president felt he could not state without divulging matters respecting other governments

Even Beginners Can Now Be Sure of Making Perfect Jams, Jellies and Preserves

Now that women know how to be sure of certain results this is going to be a great season for home preserving.

This new method for making preserving syrup is the answer to every housewife's doubts about getting perfect results in putting up fruit at home.

The practical preserving syrup is made by using 1/2 Karo (Red Label) with 1/2 sugar.

This method does away with all preserving difficulties, which are mainly due to using sugar alone.

The use of Karo ensures firm jelly that always "jells"; rich preserves with heavy syrup; and "fruity" jams.

You can be sure, too, that when you turn your jelly or jam out, you will find it firm and mellow, never tough, or "candied."

Karo is a fine, clear syrup with a natural affinity for the fruit juices. It blends the sugar with the fruit and brings out the full fruity flavor.

For Cooking, Baking and Candy Making Karo (Red Label) is used in millions of homes. In all cooking and baking recipes use Karo instead of sugar. It is sweet, of delicate flavor, and brings out the natural flavor of the food.

ANNOUNCEMENT

I will not be responsible for bills contracted by Mrs. Clara Wood. Dated August 19, 1919. JOSEPH WOOD. 8687

SWIFT PURSUIT OF THE BANDITS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—No official announcements are being made of how the United States government intends to handle the bandit nuisance in northern Mexico, from this point on, but there is every evidence that all preparations have been made to meet future depredations with a swift movement of troops such as now is being conducted against the desperadoes who held the two army aviators for ransom.

Swift moving cavalry, fully equipped with machine guns and guided by airplanes, it is understood, will be relied upon, and will be prepared to move quickly from strategic points along the border of the bandit country on the Rio Grande.

Organization of the border guard to insure the greatest speed in these movements has been completed, the cavalry regiments being so distributed as to place the nucleus of a flying column are carefully selected points along the Rio Grande.

Movement of troops of the Eighth cavalry into Mexico today inaugurated the new plan, according to officials and from this time on similar incidents "will be handled without gloves."

In announcing that Major General Joseph T. Dickman, commanding the Southern department, had acted on instructions from the war department, Secretary Baker intimated that only the danger in which the two officers were placed prevented an attempt to rescue them by force.

"When the reports came of the capture of these two officers and their being held for ransom," Secretary Baker said, "the hour of execution was fixed on the next day in default of the ransom being paid. There was, of course, no opportunity to make a military rescue within such a time and I therefore directed that the ransom money be paid and that a force be arranged to take up the hot trail of the bandits and pursue them with the hope of being able to capture as many as possible."

Details of how the dash was conducted were left entirely to General Dickman, the only requirement being that it should be made with a "swiftly moving force."

Cavalry with machine guns and guarded by airplanes, would be used. If captives are taken, they will be brought to the United States.

The close proximity of the bandit rendezvous to the border led to the hope that the American troops might overtake them before they would have time to scatter.

The president felt that he could not divulge the details of what transpired in the meetings of the commissioners, and could not therefore afford information respecting these matters.

"For this reason he could not divulge the vote upon racial equality nor how the United States commissioners voted."
